And it is thought that a periodical of the above description, if well souducted, would meet with at least a competent support. It is agreed on all hands, we believe that attention to the art of music was never so great in , our country, as at the present day; yet we shall not pretend that science or teste keeps pace with the practice. A writer in a respectable Journal recently observed, "Our City takes the lead of all inhers in the Union, both in devotion to Music, and in the Institutions for its perpetuation and improvement." this be an acknowledged truth, we doesn' if a cif-cumstance no little favorable to our design.

It is well known that in Boston Music engages the special attention of both the old and young: and if as been thought proper to introduce it. Mr Pairbanks has dwelt fiere 9 years, and has brought his estate into a good state of culti- and ciaim protection of the vation. He pursues almost every branch of trade required in a new settlement, makes his own agricultural tools, machinery, and even his these various occupations.

The examination of soils, which has received particular attention, under this anxey, we think well calculated to pro-1 % the agricultural interests of the State. We have been too much in the habit of estimating the value of our public lands in reference only to they timber. It would seem from this repredithet important mineral treasures abound on the public lands, of great value. A very extensive bod of fron ore was discovered, dur ing the survey, and the following is Dr. Jackson's account of it

I' w Mr. Currier's E discovered a valnable mins of rich fron oze. It is of that variety ealled compact red homafita. It pentre on the hill, S. E. from the house, and about half a mile distant. Its out croppings may be seen in two different places upon the side and on the sum-ent of the hill. The lower bed runs north 9 F, and dips 85 deg. eastwardly; the upper bed rules worth 5 d. g. east, and dips also to the east and. This ore occurs-in calciferous slate sharged with manganese, its colors being red, green, and black The strata run N. ib deg In order to ascertain the extent of this are I saused the soil to be removed in several plan, and, on finding the boundaries of the the principal bad, it was measured and found to be Mi feet wide. The soil, overlaying it was covered a the an abundance of red sorrel, which served to indicate the position of the ore, and by digging slong its margin we always found the hyper-tite below. The soil is very thin and composed entirely of disintegrated ore. I mean u 14 the limits of the bed as far as I was able to axpers it, and found its beath to be 450 feet. It soutiens a into the forest and is probably connested with the great bed of iron ore which i districted last year apon the Meduznikeag, at Woodstock. A Murderer discovered through a Dream Mr. Alexander instanced a well authenticated dream ecorded by Mr. Ward, in hais "Human Life." There really appeared more than inbulous coincidence in this. "It happened" said one of the characters in Mr. Ward's book, (whether Mr. Ward was himself the narrator, the lecturer did not know,) "some thirty or more years ago, when I used to attend as a grand juryman at Lancaster. We must abridge the story. There had been a sad morder committed on an amiable young man named Horrocks. He was found obbed, and his liesd beaten in with bludgeons The murder excited more than common aympathy, and for many months vigilant search was made for the perpretrators. A particular friend of the murdered man awoke one night in great terror, and told his wife that God had reveiled to him in a dream that Samuel Longwith, of Bolton, was the morderer. It is important to observe, that Longwith was a man with whom he had no acquaintance, whom he had scarcely ever seen, and who lived twenty miles off. His wife told him to think no more about it, but to go to sleep. He did so, but again awoke from the effects of the same dream. He resolved to set out for Bolton instantly, and apply for a warrant against Longwith. He did so; but the magnitrate to whom he applied refused to take it on such evidence. He retired in mortification As he was passing through the market-place, he met Longwith, with whom he immediately desired to go to a public house with him to hour something he had to communicate. There locking the door, he at once charged Longwith with the murder. The man was seized with all the disorder of guilt, and faintly denied the accusation In his confession be said he was innocent, tor he did not strike the blow. " I třeh you know who old, replied the triend of the murdered man, and the man was taken up and examined

He prevericated in his statement, and was remanded for three days, at the end of which after many hours prayer, he contessed that he had been induced to join three men in a robbing expedition; meeting Horrocks, who made some resistance, his companions murdered him . I his confession came out before the grand jury, and upon it Longwith une brought to trial. The dream, and every thing supernatural, was of course not offered in evidence. I was at the trial,' continued St. fawrence, in 'Human Isle,' and the man who was doggedly silent after being & and guilty, again conferred his guilt just before he execution, to the no small sufficient on the judge, (Rook), who had no doubte, but -ny feers, art ng from the pausity of the ev-
